

CSCI 2300 – Collaboration Policy

Since there are no exams the grade for this seminar course depends heavily on the four assignments. We choose to adopt a rather liberal collaboration policy, which we hope will encourage learning and future success in collaboration projects. Assignments and course material may be discussed freely among students, but all written work and code should be your own. If you use any materials that are not your own, please cite the sources. As such, you own your work but you will be asked to contribute your results to public releases / group papers that you will be involved with.

By signing this document, you agree to abide by the CSCI 2300 Collaboration Policy, as published above and available on the course website. Please read carefully this document, sign it, and return it in class by Tuesday, January 30.

No homework will be graded until we have this document on file.
