

Recommending New Restaurants Based on Past Ratings

Abstract

Yelp has an academic dataset that contains information about many aspects of their services. Among these are information about users, reviews and businesses. Using a user's review of businesses, we attempt to create recommendations for that user. We then use this recommendation system in a web-app that helps users find restaurants in different cities.